SHOCKING GUN ACCIDENT.

A very singular and sad death occurred on the bad lands just west of the Ashley valley this week. Jerman Herrea, a young Mexican, went out to herd sheep two weeks ago, for John S. Hacking, one of the county commissioners. Mr. Hacking learned Tuesday that his sheep were scattered and no herder at the camp. A searching partywent out Wednesday and they found the body of the herder, about three-quarters of a mile north of the camp, just south of the old Indian trail. Careful investigation was made and no indications of foul play were evident. The man lay upon his rifle, a wound under the chin and an ugly hole in the top of his head. The body was brought to the valley and Precinct Judge Brig. Christensen was summoned to hold an inquest. It was decided that the man came to his death by an accidental gunshot wound. It seems he was standing with his chin resting over the muzzle of the gun when it was discharged.

Millville, Cache Co., March II.—A number of local citizens have organized the Millville Waterworks company, with a capital of $10,000, divided into shares of $200 each. Work has already commenced upon the pipe line from the spring that the company purchased a year ago, so the prospects for a water system are brighter than they have ever been. A force of men are out digging trenches for the pipes. The spring lies east of town on the bench so that there will be no difficulty in taking the water to all parts of the town.

Mathickey's offer, we are reminded, embraced the erection of a modern pressed brick two-story structure, 50 by 50, with all the modern conveniences and fixtures furnished. This is one new building for the coming season, and it is learned that plans for several new residences have been drafted and the contracts let. The most pretentious of which is the beautiful $8,00 residence of J. J. Hasbrouch.

The new Armory Opera House in the Blue Eye building was opened Friday night by the Julia Romaine company in the preduction of a very entertaining play, "Reaping the Harvest." The hall with a seating capacity double the old one, was crowded; and the general opinion is, that with a stage sufficiently large to accommodate, Nampa can now expect to be entertained by good companies, which heretofore have passed by.

BOOM IN BEET GROWING.

BOOM IN BEET GROWING.

This year the farmers are awake to the advantages of beet culture, as is evidenced by many old planters increasing heir acreage and considerable new arreage having been contracted. The two electric railways threading the country west of Boise, the Boise valley on the right and the Interurban road on the left of the river, broaden the facilities of transportation, and it is here that a great part of the new acreage has been taken. The service of these roads answers a long-felt requirement. The work of construction on both roads is being prosecuted with equal carnestness and is progressing very fast. The grade has been completed as far out as Meridian. It is understood that the two roads will be ready for the handling of the beets when the harvest begins. The last day of February the sugar company planted 10 acres of beets, this being the first of the season. BOOM IN BEET GROWING.

Cowley, Big Hern Co., Wyo., March 6.—
An unusually long spell of cold weather lasted during the latter part of December and January but February was an ideal month. Twenty-six beautiful warm sunshiny days out of 25 is a good record, and March is keeping up so far with excellent weather. About 300 men are working on the Burlington railroad extension, suith from Worland, for Crosby, Willis & Welch, who have the contract for grading. A large number of people are also at work on the government canal at Corbett.

Another portion of this canal will soon

work on the government canal at Corbett.

Another portion of this canal will soon be let by contract comprising nearly one million yards or about 150 miles of main canal and laterals in addition to what is already being done under contract. This will furnish employment for many men and teams during the next year.

It will also furnish an excellent market for the products of the farms, and no one need be idle or without money.

The Lovel canal is being rapidly pushed to completion, though it will not be inrigated for crops the present season, as the large flumes are not yet in place. All the timber and steel are on hand, but the men cannot be obtained to do the work.

There are excellent prospects for crops this season as there has been more snow than usual and the ground is in excellent condition.

Several hundred acres of beets will be grown in this town this season for the Billings factory, Lovell will take the lead in this industry the present year. This will demonstrate the advisability of a sugar factory for the colonies in the near future.

BORING FOR OIL. Three companies will drill for ell in this neighborhood this season. The oil found last fall is of such a high grade that it will be of great value, the analysis showing that the greater portion is illuminating all the state of the state o ing that the greater portion is humane-ing oils.

The outlook for the people is very bright. A number of buildings will be erected this coming summer. The hum of industry will vibrate throughout the length and breadth or this beautiful coun-try, which has been so abundantly blessed the water a good climate and splendid with water, a good climate and splendid opportunities for the homesceker to get land, make a home and become independent.

Stock and sheep have wintered in fine shape. There has been a good market for hay and grain, and the prospects are that the present good prices will continue, as the demand is increasing.
The health of the people has been good, with no contagious diseases. A few, however, have been called to lay away loved ones in the silent tomb.

DEATH OF MRS. DALTON.

DEATH OF MRS. DALTON.

It is with sorrow that the death is chronicled of Mrs. Louise Dalton, wife of Franklin Dalton, formerly of Parowan. Utah. She was 51 years of age. She died yesterday of a complication of allments. Deceased has lived in Cowley for about five years, and has been a mother, it may be said, to all the people. She was always found where sickness and trouble were and has endeared herself to the whole community. She was a faithful Latter-day Saint. She leaves a husband, two sons, four daughters and a number of grand-children to mourn her demise.

Yegen Bros. of Billings have taken up a large tract of land near Crystal on the Big Horn river, the purpose being to establish cement works.

The old folks party of the Cowley ward set for March 8 has been postponed for one week on account of the death and funeral of Mrs. Dalton.

Farmers Win Prizes From Provincial Fair for Cereals. Special Correspondence.

Special Correspondence.

Cardston, Alberta, Canada, March 5.—
The Cardston district has finally put on a boom. Numerous transfers of realty lately made show advances in values nearly double those of six months ago. There is also considerable activity in the building trades.

Through the "Dominion Seed Growers Association," and the superiority of selected seed grown here the Cardston district achieved additional honors by being ordered to ship two bushels of "Alberta Red" winter wheat to the exhibition branch of the department of agriculture at Ottawa. This wheat will be re-shipped from Ottawa to Dublin where it will be placed on exhibition at the Irish Fair.

In addition to this order the govern-

at the Irish Fair.

In addition to this order the government immigration department purchased 85 bushels of seed barley from a local farmer for free distribution.

Word just received from the provincial seed fair now being held at Edmonton, brings the glad news that this district captured all prizes for best samples of winter wheat, second for spring wheat, first for oats and second for barley. On the heels of the report, came inquiries for options on all available farm lands situated not too far from railway transportation. Markets are continuing the vesy best, especially for good work teams. The "roller mills" have installed steam power, so that now there is an increased activity in export trade.

BOOKS AND THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

Not least among the beneficient uses of books is their value as counter-checks to tendencies for the moment dominant—as reminders of the existence of permanent standards which might otherwise, "in the climor and rumor of things to be," find themselves brushed aside and forgotten.
There are periods in the world's history when great works have to manage to get themselves done somehow,
and the noise of the operation is so deafening as to drown the gentler and sweeter sounds. Suppose you live across the street from where an 18story office building is in process of diligent construction. The incessant clangor of the riveting machine and the hiss of escaping steam grow in the course of weeks to seem essential concomitants of life. Then a fine Sunday comes, and you hear a bird sing in a dominant-as reminders of the exist

course of weeks to seem essential concomitants of life. Then a fine Sunday comes, and you hear a bird sing in a tree which the march of progress has spared—and you remember that there are other and pleasanter sounds than those which have filled all your waking moments on week days.

So it is with the life of which the skyscrapers are the instruments and symbols. I was talking the other day with a young man of parts whom I had not seen since his graduation from college. There, he had shown an interest and a pretty taste in letters, and I had hoped to see him add something of his own. But now he said, firmly though with a becoming diffidence of manner. 'I can't help feeling
when I am about on lower Broadway that I want to be among the men who do something—who sell more stocks than the next man, or win a case which the next man couldn't win, or carry

than the next man, or win a case which the next man couldn't win, or carry an invention to success."

That is incontestably the view which, owing perhaps to the American's "extra drop of nervous fluid." of which Colonel Higginson somewhere speaks, is increasingly held by our aspiring youth: and "furious moiling in the gold mill!" becomes increasingly the law of our being. We have our holidays, it is true, and more of them than the last generation had; the admirable institution of the "week end." long understood in England (its invention was one of the few undisputed good deeds of Oliver Cromwell), botter known on this side the water botter known on this side the water then it was; but our very holidays are turned into tollsome scenes of busy motion by the stirring majority.—A. L. Coleman in Putnam's.

UNCLE SAM'S GREAT SEAL. The great seal of the United State: was adopted June 20, 1782. Immediately after the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, on July 4 1776, a committee was appointed to prepare a device for a seal, but the matter was not consummated until the date first mentioned. The device is on one side, a spread eagle, with a shield having thirteen stripes paleways and a chief azure, in one talon a bun-dle of arrows, in the other an olive branch, in its beak a scroll with the motto "E Pluribus Unum" and over its head a glory breaking from the clouds, surrounding thirteen stars. On the reverse is an unfinished pyramid symboling the growth and strength of the states, over it the all seeing eye in a triangle surrounded by a glory, and around the rim the words, "Annuit Coeptis" (God has favored the under-taking) and "Novus Ordo Seculorum (a new order of things).
